Agency Description: At Regeneration Farm we produce healthy food in the pacific NW while building a diverse farm ecosystem and educating about landscape regeneration, sustainability, carbon sequestration and resilient farming in the face of climate change. We focus on agriculture's significant capacity to mitigate climate change through proven techniques that achieve carbon sequestration, such as agroforestry. We see the desperate need for this education to be made more accessible and welcome all students who seek to learn more.

Position Descriptions: There are so many educational, scientific and career related opportunities that are available in the work we do at our farm, especially as local economies, food security and climate change adaptation become increasingly necessary and mainstream. Take a look at our website's resources page and let us know what you are interested in focusing on. We will try to pair this with applicable or related work that we are currently engaged in. REMOTE administrative, education and research work options may be available.

Service-Learning office note: Currently SCC is sanctioning REMOTE options only.
